APPLICATION-INDEPENDENT API FOR DISTRIBUTED COMPONENT COLLABORATION

Abstract

A method for a system having distributed collaborating components includes restricting direct interaction between distributed collaborating components by introducing an application-independent interface between distributed collaborating components and invoking a service from the application-independent interface in order to enable interaction between distributed collaborating components.

21807_1.DOC